

DAY 1.

Regulatory Affairs Associate Scientist

Are you ready to be an awesome Regulatory Affairs Manager?

Perform regulatory activities for healthcare products. Including medicines (Rx/OTC), food supplements, medical devices and cosmetics, working with projects. New submissions and maintenance of marketing authorizations. Prepare and submit variations and renewals of our current portfolio. Perform an adequate follow up of Health authority submissions. Evaluate artworks and marketing promotional materials. Providing adequate regulatory insight to the multifunctional team Perform the necessary regulatory tasks to the registration process for P&G Health products. Review and compile technical dossiers, ensuring that high quality data.

What we offer you:

- Significant work from your first day in P&G and every single day learning.
- Environment multifunctional teamwork and high level of interaction with managers and directors who will develop your skills.
- Competitive salary and a benefit package.
- We love flexibility. You can arrange your work schedule based on your personal needs.

Qualifications:

- Required Bachelor in Pharma degree (Licenciatura en Química Farmaceutica).
- Be able to communicate in English and Spanish.
- Regulatory experience preferably in healthcare areas.
- 5 years experience in registration of products in Guatemala.
- Understanding of the pharmaceutical environment, and life cycle management.
- Skills: Good communication.
- Able to work under pressure and to tight timelines.
- Effective time and organization management.
- Teamwork/collaboration.
- Results oriented.
- Entrepreneurial and self-motivating.
- Commercial understanding of corporate and operational business issues.
- Openness to change and ability to think out of the box.

